THE 1% SOLUTION. BECAUSE GOOD ENOUGH IS NOT GOOD ENOUGH!

Marcia Moran is the expert to interview!

Marcia Moran knew nothing about how to get “whole” after her stroke in 2014. She spent the next eight years learning the answers to her particular stroke.

She had aphasia, a communication disorder that, if not cured by the second or third month of recovery, it is almost impossible to overcome. She nearly conquered it three-and-a-half-years post-stroke, proving that you can sometimes find a different answer to your particular problem if you continue to look.

Marcia also had weakness on her right side, and the physical therapists did an excellent job guiding through therapy while insurance lasted. But then what? She still wasn't whole. She had to find her own way. Her way was writing the book Stroke FORWARD.
